

Sinclair Broadcasting has made a decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days just before the election. This is a clear-cut example of the dangers of media consolidation.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge. As such, Sinclair is obligated by law to serve the public interest. But when large companies control the airwaves, are they allowed by law to encroach on our democratic principles. WHY are they not being held accountable?? If it is only the good of the bottom line, and not the public good, then it is important that be acknowledged, through the license renewal process, that stations such as these are one of our greatest threats to a democratic system with which, the media, in all instances must comply. To conduct business otherwise is irresponsible.
